I also have the dates listed on my website, if these dates don't work for you, please email me as there may be a way we can work out a suitable time for you, I'm open to doing classes midweek or 4 x shorter classes over a month. We're all busy these days and some people find weekdays to be a better option for them while others prefer the weekends, I'm happy to accommodate where I can.

I also hold 'Reiki Meditation Practice' sessions to help you continue your practice once you've completed Reiki 1 or 2. These tend to pop up as the need arises. Let me know if you're interested in re-immersing yourself into your practice and we can begin a regular weekly or fortnightly meet up to help you with that. These are $20 per session.

Astrological Happenings for September 2019

September:

14 – Full Moon in Pisces 21° (2.32pm AEST)

14 – Mercury conjunct Venus

14 – Mercury enters Libra

14 – Venus enters Libra

18 – Saturn stations direct

23 – Sun enters Libra – Spring Equinox

29 – New Moon in Libra 5° (4.26am AEST)

With a stellium of the Sun, Mercury, Venus and Mars in Virgo for the first 2 weeks of September, we'll be focused on the day to day routine and with Jupiter squaring this focused little group, it won't feel like such a grind. In fact it may be that you find quite a bit of joy in the everyday tasks and end up having a great time just getting things done!

Towards the end of the month you may begin to see Venus as it dances from the bright light of the Sun into a starring role as the Evening Star. You may see her twinkle her bright self onto the earth at sunset in the last couple of days of the month. She will be seated at the Libra table which is one of her favourite places to be as she is the ruler of the sign, listen to her as she whispers her song before she descends.

Cards for September 2019

These are The Druid Plant Oracle cards illustrated by Will Worthington.

Borage – This card is about courage and bravery, (The Celtic name for borage is borrach meaning courage) the kind of courage that comes from caring for the greater good and acting altruistically, there's a sword in its scabbard casually leaning on a fence but ready for action should the need occur. Sometimes in order to act bravely we must 'let go' of what we believe to be true so we can get on with what needs to be done, memories of past pain can stop us in our tracks if we let them. Rosemary represents memories and remembrance; in the card it sits behind a wicker fence – holding the recollections at bay for now. There's a little bunch of Thyme in the bottom corner that also represents courage (the name Thyme comes from a Greek word thymus which means courage).

Cuckoo Pint – This card is about harmony and creativity, the Alum (Cuckoo Pint) represents the union of the masculine and the feminine, alchemically this represents the union of 'duality', a very powerful joining of opposites. We all contain masculine and feminine, the animus and anima, two parts of the whole. There is great potential in this card, a sense of something magical that may change our lives. The Cuckoo sings a song of change and brings a message that fate has something unexpected in store for us. The stone structure in the background is Mên-an-Tol, (Cornwall UK) and is associated with healing and fertility.

Poppy – The poppy represents motherhood and remembrance. It may be that something we had forgotten or left behind will return to us and a great healing will occur as a result. Poppies also represent sleep and death, a connection to our deeper natures and the mystical unknown part of ourselves. Perhaps the part of ourselves we had forgotten when we came into this corporeal world of time and space.

These three cards together are saying that we are in for a month of change and growth, we may be called upon to be brave and it may be that we must move forward even when our past experience left a wound that seems insurmountable. As long as we are moving forward there will be space created to heal and rebuild, there is great potential if we trust now. Magic is made of the stuff of dreams and the ethereal part of our very being – in sleep you remember what you had once forgotten...
